NO IMMEDIATE RELIEF FROM HEAT IN SIGHT

Numerous Deaths Reported Throughout Midwestern Area

BULLETIN

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the government thermometer at the Schuck & Bates grocery, Lincoln Way and Everett street, registered 97, with prospects that it would reach or surpass its high mark of yesterday—98.

Chicago, June 26—(UP)—A shimmering heat wave which killed upwards of a score of persons and seared growing crops held the country in its grip today and little relief was promised soon.

The heat wave centered in the middlewest and was creeping eastward. Extreme heta prevailed also on the west coast, where there were numerous and freakish storms.

Chicago and other cities around the Great Lakes, where temperatures western suburbs where the lake's yesterday ranged between 95 and 100, were assured some relief by lake breezes which crawled slowly southward, easing the temperatures down gradually as they moved along.

With the exception of along the eastern seaboard and in parts of the Rocky Mountain areas, temperatures yesterday were above 90. New heat records for June were set in Illinois and Iowa, where the mercury in many cities climbed above 100.

Before the lake breezes sent temperatures down, an official high mark of 95 was recorded at the University of Chicago. In the loop, the mercury soared to 98 while in some of the effect was lost, marks of 100 and higher were reached.

Freakish Storms

Accompanying the heat wave in California were freakish storms. Lightning severely injured four boys and fired several buildings. Temperatures in some sections of the state went above 90 while in others the storms drove them down to more seasonable marks.

At least seven deaths were reported in Chicago as due directly or indirectly to the heat wave, several were reported in St. Louis, where the official temperatures was 100 even, and others scattered about the area of extreme heat brought the total to around 20.

Two of the Chicago deaths were drownings, one persons was stricken by the heat and fell off a roof, and others died of heart disease.

Thousands upon thousands of persons were driven to the beaches, lakes and rivers in all midwestern states. More than 300,000 were estimated packed on Chicago's beaches alone.

Crops Suffering

Crops, especially in Illinois, were reported suffering from the heat. In western North Dakota and eastern Montana there was a serious added drought threat. The situation in some parts of the northwest was so serious farm associations appealed for federal aid.

Weather forecasters at Chicago and other cities predicted the heat would continue at least through today and tomorrow, after which rains and falling temperatures are expected.

At Valparaiso, Indr it became so hot yesterday that rails of an interurban line were warped a foot out of line. At Kendanville, in the same state, Simeon Cain, a farmer, dropped dead of the heat while plowing. Some of the places where temperatures of 100 or higer where temperatures of 100 or higher were reported were: Peoria, 100; Davenpot 102; Dubuque, Ia., 102; Omaha 100; St. Louis 100; Bimingham 100; Sioux City 100; Quincy, Ill., 101; Galesburg, Ill., 102. Scores of cities had temperatures between 95 and 100. Suffering in most areas was increased by high humidity.

ONE PEORIAN DEAD

Peoria, Ill., June 26—(AP)—One death and five prostrations were recorded in Peoria today as the mercury climbed steadily toward an all-time heat record for June.

It was 90 degrees at 8:30 this morning after a stifling night. George A. Kuefner, 52, dairyman, died a half hour after being stricken with the heat.

JOLIET MAN STRICKEN

Joliet, Ill., June 26—(UP)—Overcome by heat, Jesoph Vittorio, 56, of Willow Springs, employed as a cemetery caretaker, died today at St. Joseph's hospital.

Four other men were in the hospital as the result of heat prostration.

DAVENPORT TOLL THREE

Posse Quits Hunt For Negro Slayer

Cl) Springs, Okla., June 26 (UP)—A posse of about 500 citizens who scarched the undergrowth and the broken country near here all night for a Negro slayer of an officer virtually abandoned the hunt today.

No trace of the fugitive was found when the posse went over the suspected hiding place of the Negro, Fillmore Davis, who killed Under-Sheriff Guy Jarvis when the latter attempted to arrest him on a charge of stealing gasoline.

Search was continued by regular officers. Threats of violence had subsided, after they had caused governor W. H. Murray to order out three National Guard units at Kingfisher and Watonga to protect the Negro.

Sheriff Henry Law of Blaine county said. "The officers will find this slayer if it takes the rest of our lives."

Seven Boys Confess Starting Many Fires

Woodstock, Ill., June 26 —(UP)—Seven youths ranging in age from 17 to 20 years, have confessed, McHenry county officials announced today, that they started nine destructive farm fires in this vicinity for the "thrill" of watching buildings burn.

Deputy Fire Marshal Paul E. Bertram of Crystal Lake, who arrested the boys, said the band toured the countryside in search of deserted farms, and finding one, would soak a handkerchief in gasoline from the tank of their car and use it as a torch. Thousands of dollars of damage resulted from blazes started by the youths, Bertram said.

They were released under $5,000 bonds after arraignment before Magistrate W. S. Batten who ordered them held to the grand jury.

DIFFERENCES ON MORATORIUM TO BE NEGOTIATED

Secretary Mellon To Confer With French Officials Tomorrow

Paris, June 26 —(AP)— Negotiations seeking to harmonize the views of the United States and France on President Hoover's proposal for a war debts and reparations holiday, will open tomorrow between Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and French officials.

Premier Laval today said he would meet Mr. Mellon and Ambassador Edge at the Ministry of the Interior. The French Finance Minister, Budget Minister and Foreign Minister Briand will be present and technical discussions will take place.

The announcement came in the midst of presentation of the interchange of views thus far before the Chamber of Deputies and followed the receipt of a brief reply to the French memorandum on the Hoover proposals expressing the hope of the American government that the French government would "take advantage of the presence of the Secretary of the Treasury in Paris and discuss with the Ambassador and with him the various problems arising from the original proposal of the president and the French answer."

Washington, June 26—(AP)—The willingness of the United States to compromise with France on a war debt and reparations moratorium plan was indicated today by Secretary Stimson in a formal statement

The suggestions in the French counter-proposal to President Hoover's one year moratorium plan do not accomplish the full measure of relief contemplated by the President and must therefore be the subject of discussions to reconcile the two viewpoints.

Early conclusions in the discussions now being carried on in Paris by Ambassador Edge and Secretary Mellon with French Officials were expected by the Secretary in his statement.

"The French note shows a gratifying cordiality to the President's proposal," said the Secretary's statement. It was issued by the State Department simultaneously with the text of the French government's note replying to the President's moratorium plan.

Stimson's Statement

The text of Secretary Stimson's statement follows:

"The French note shows a gratifying cordiality to the President's proposal. As we understand it, the French government is mainly concerned that there should be no breach in the integrity of the Young plan agreement. France expresses a willingness to forego the retention of any German payments for a year

"The Presidents plan does not propose a reconsideration or impairment of any international agreements, including our own debt agreements. His suggestion extended only to the simple postponement for one year of the payments under such agreements.

"The question of the method by which this postponement is to be accomplished and the ultimate payment of the postponed amounts are matters requiring negotiation and settlement between different governments.

"There are suggestions in the method proposed by the French government which do not accomplish the full measure of relief to debtor nations corresponding to the President's plan and must, therefore be the subject of further discussion with view to a modification that will bring the full measure of accord of which the fine evidence of cooperation in the French note gives every hope of success.

"In view of the action already taken by some government's in acceptance of the President's plan and the corresponding suspension of payments on intergovernmental debts due July first, Ambassador Edge and Secretary Mellon are engaged in these discussions with the French government with view to early conclusions."

FRANCE MAKES REPLY

Paris, June 24—(AP)—The French reply to President Hoover's proposal for a year's war debts and reparations payments suspension made public today states that the French government is in "cordial accord with the high sentiments' inspiring the President's proposal.

The reply, which had been eagerly awaited, was as follows:

"The French government has taken note with great interest of the proposal of the President of the United States and declares itself in cordial accord with the high sentiments which have inspired this proposal.

"The French government is more than any government desirous of seeing affirmed in acts for the economic reconstruction of the world, a solidarity which has always inspired France whether it be in accepting a successive reduction in the German debt or whether it be in executing the anticipated evacuation

TWO KILLED IN A CLEVELAND, OHIO STORM THIS MORN

"Waterspout," High Wind Cause Great Damage To City

BULLETIN

Cleveland, June 26 —(AP)— Two men were killed and a number were injured as a 52-mile-an-hour wind and rainstorm swept over Cleveland and northern Ohio today.

Those killed were identified as George Cordon, 35, and Donald McGraw, 27, both of whom were struck by lightning.

BULLETIN

Detroit, June 26 — (AP) — Rescue parties were sent onto Lakes St Clair and Erie today, following reports that at least four persons had drowned in widely scattered sections during a heavy wind and rain storm which swept the lakes.

Macomb county deputies started a search near Huron Point, east of Mt. Clemens, where several persons who were fishing in Lake St. Clair were reported drowned. Cottagers along the lake reported several overturned boats could be seen from the shore.

Along Lake Erie, a dozen or more boats were blown out into the lake by the heavy wind. A Coast Guard cutter was speeding to Point Aux Peaux, where several persons were reported missing.

Eight men were rescued from the lake by residents near Baycrest, four miles north of Monroe after their boats had overturned.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 26—(UP)—A "waterspout" accompanied by wind of cyclonic velocity struck Cleveland shortly before noon today.

Preliminary reports said heavy damage had been inflicted in the residential section of the metropolitan area.

Hundreds of cars were stalled as traffic became paralyzed by the torrent which Weather Bureau officials said was believed unprecedented.

The waterspout struck less than an hour after the skies had cleared from a storm of lesser intensity. Skies were blackened and the entire city plunged into the darkness of midnight. Moderate winds swept in with the first downpour which continued for nearly an hour. The skies cleared momentarily and then became overcast as the tempest descended with the fury of a tornado.

Telephone and telegraph companies reported hundreds of miles of communication lines were down in the outlying districts.

Lasted Half Hour

The storm lashed the city for nearly 30 minutes before its fury was spent. It sped up the eastern Lake Erie shores towards Conneaut and Ashtabula which reported its arrival shortly after noon. Reports said that area felt the force of the cyclonic winds in the same manner as Cleveland.

As reports trickled through from the suburban districts, it was estimated that the property damage would mount into thousands of dollars.

Power lines were shattered for a while and local radio stations reported they were shut out for nearly ten minutes as power went off.

In the downtown area, hundreds of cars were abandoned at street intersections as motors refused to carry on through the lashing winds. Tops were torn away and scattered along the streets.

Storm sewers were unable to accommodate the heavy flow of water and curbs were running brim-full and overflowing into store fronts.

POST AND GATTY MAKE FIRST STOP OF SIBERIAN HOP

'Round-World Fliers Are Going Strong On Record Flight

Irkutsk, Siberia, June 26 —(AP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, Americans flying around the world, landed at Novo Sibirsk, Siberia, at 1:31 P. M. (Greenwich time) today from Moscow after a flight of 2,000 miles.

The airmen planned to resume their flight to Irkutsk at midnight tonight.

The Americans, who left Moscow at 5 A. M. (10 P. M. E. S. T.) Thursday traversed the 1,450 miles to Novo Sibirsk in ten hours and 32 minutes, arriving at 8:32 A. M. E. S. T. Friday.

The hop to Irkutsk is 1,050 miles.

When Wiley Post and Harold Gatty brought their plane down at Novo Sibirsk today they had completed approximately 7,000 miles of their race around the world. The entire route measures between 14,00 and 15,000 according to the direction they take from Irkutsk. So if the speed of the first four days should be continued the American fliers would girdle the globe in eight days. The present record is 22 days established by the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, and Post and Gatty's ambition is to reduce this to ten days.

Moscow, June 26—(UP)—The globe-girdling American monoplane Winnie Mae, with the Atlantic and most of Europe behind it, was off for Siberia early today after a night in Moscow.

Its crew, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, taxied down the field into the wind at 5 a. m. (9 p. m. Thursday E. S. T.) and turned the nose of their white plane toward the Ural mountains and Asia.

The speedy plane, its motor in perfect condition, was headed over mountains, desolate regions to the northeast. Its first objective was the city of Novosibirsk, where the fliers planned to refuel and continue on toward Irkutsk, 2,600 miles from Moscow.

The fliers departed with favorable flying weather at Moscow and vicinity. The sky was cloudy. A group of Soviet officials and aviators, together with American and Russian newspapermen watched their big monoplane roar swiftly into the gray dawn.

Have Slept Little

Neither Post nor Gatty had slept since they left Berlin at 7:38 a. m. (E S T) yesterday. There appeared little likelihood that they would get to bed before sometime tomorrow. They appeared cheerful and energetic despite their fatiguing experience and the grueling grind of flying almost continuously in their effort to set a 10-day around the world record.

Post said he and Gatty probably would remain about an hour at Novosibirsk and then proceed on toward Irkutsk, with a possible second stop at Krasnoyarsk. They are following the Trans-Siberian railway, the most direct route over northern Asia.

The Winnie Mae's motor was pronounced in excellent condition despite the strain of the long trans-Atlantic pull and the 1,000-mile flight yesterday. The fliers were delighted with the performance of their ship and confident they would be back in New York a week from today—10 days after leaving on their dash around the world.

Their route across Asia was expected to bring them to the Pacific above Vladivostok, near Habarovsk, whence they planned to follow the coast to the Bering Strait. They expect to fly across to Alaska and from there southeast across Canada and the United States.

ARRIVE IN DENMARK

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 26—(UP)—The monoplane Liberty, carrying Otto Hillig and Holgar Hoiriis, landed here at 2:10 p. m. (8:10 a. m. E S T) today at the end of a leisurely uninterrupted flight across the North Atlantic from America.

The photographer and his pilot from Liberty, N. Y., came down to a clamorous demonstration from the crowd at the air field. After an anxious day of waiting, they had about been given up for lost yesterday when they turned up in Krefeld, Germany, driven off their course by bad weather.

Twenty-thousand cheering men, women and children were at the air field. The fliers were escorted into Copenhagen by 15 Danish military planes.

Hoiriis' mother and sister were near the airplane when it came to a landing and hurried forward to kiss the pilot when he left the trans-Atlantic plane.

"I am so happy to see my boy," his mother said.

The two fliers received the Aeronautical Society's gold medal and then were carried on the shoulders of their admirers to the flower-covered air station. The crowd was cheering, singing the national anthem and waving Danish and American flags as the two triumphant aviators were

TWO BUSINESS HOUSES THERE WERE ROBBED

Three Bandits Terrorized Baker Who Saw Them At Work

Two safes were blown and about $300 taken from two places of business in Paw Paw this morning about 3 o'clock when three bandits visited the village and for a short time are reported to have flourished guns and threatened residents who were attracted by their actions. Joe Sefranek, who operates a bakery shop was at work at the early morning hour and heard the bandits. He went to see what was going on and was told to return to his bakery and mind his own business, and not to spread an alarm under a threat of having his head blown off. Sefranek complied with the bandit's order.

The meat market of Herman Roesler on the main street of the village was the first place to be visited. Here a charge of explosive was placed in the safe and the door blown away. About $250 in cash and checks are believed to have been taken from the cash drawer in the safe. The force of the blast stopped a clock, and the mechanism operating the electric refrigeration system, and bits of steel from the wrecked safe were blown into the walls across the room. The interior of the market was considerably damaged by the explosion which wrecked the safe.

Garage Safe Blown

A short distance from the market, the trio entered the Carl Kindleberger garage building. Here a small safe was rolled out of the office to a vacant lot in the rear, where a huge charge of explosion shattered the combination, blowing the door away. About $10.25 was reported to have been taken from the strong box in the Kindleberger safe.

According to reports, but three men participated in the blowing of the two safes. They are believed to have been the same trio who Tuesday night robbed four places in Earlville and held up a road-house near Troy Grove in LaSalle county, shooting the proprietor of the place in the back when he said he recognized one of them as a former Mendota resident.

Max Jauch, proprietor of the road-house who was shot, has been unable to definitely identify the bandit. He has told LaSalle county authorities that he knew the bandit merely by sight, having met him during his residence in Mendota. Jauch was shot through the hand as the bullet glanced off his back.

From Jauch's roadhouse safe the bandits took $132 and then scooped up al lof the cigarettes in stock. At the four Earlville places the loot consisted of a small quantity of merchandise and about $35 in cash.

Political Parties are Hit By "Hard Times"

Washington, June 26—(AP)—National political leaders are finding it kind of hard to keep their new high powered machines running through the dull season.

It is a question of money and both Republicans and Democrats have run into "hard times." Ways of keeping the treasury filled in the off-year of political campaigns is occupying attention of the party chieftains.

Joseph R. Nutt of Cleveland, G. O. P. Treasurer, is conferring here this week with the Republican high command and it is understood that he said the bottom was in sight in the old money barrel.

The last report of the Democratic National Committee showed a loan had been required from Chairman John J. Raskob.

Jail Break Attempt Foiled By Arrests

Carlinville, Ill., June 26—(UP)—Four men were held in the county jail here today following their arrest yesterday when they called to visit two men confined on charges of burglary. The quartet when searched were found to have small steel saws concealed in their clothing.

The men Thomas Smith, Gendio and John Barker, all of Gillespie, and Lawrence Summers, Virden, are believed to have been planning to slip the saws to the prisoners.

The plot is believed to have involved an attempt to aid Frank Summers of Virden and Leonard Hapner of Litchfield in sawing their way out of jail.

NEW OIL PIPE LINES TO BOOST BRITISH OUTPUT

Plans Complete for Two Million Tons From Iraq Fields

Baghdad, Persia,—(UP)—The output of oil in the British Empire or in territories under British influence will be increased by 2,000,000 tons annually from 1935, by an agreement signed here recently.

The agreement, signed after prolonged negotiations, by the Iraq Petroleum Company and the Iraq government, calls for a pipeline from the Iraq oil fields near Kirkuk to the Mediterranean.

The pipeline, on which construction is to start immediately, will proceed first of all for about 150 miles to Haiditha, where it will divide into two branches. One branch will pass Rutbah Wells, then through the British mandated territories of Transjordania and Palestine to Haifa, and the other branch through the French mandated territories of Syria and Lebanon to Tripoli.

1,200 Miles Long

The combined length of the two trans-desert lines will be about 1,200 miles. The total cost will be about $50,000,000. About 500,000 tons of piping will be required, costing about $15,000,000.

The Tripoli line, which is about 110 miles shorter than the one to Haifa, will be completed first, but the Haifa line must be completed within six months of the other, and both must be ready not later than 1935. Each of the two pipe lines will have a maximum carrying capacity of 2,000,000 tons yearly.

The delay in reaching agreement was due to the variety of conflicting international interests which sought satisfaction. The British desired the pipe line to debouch in British mandated territory, the French in French mandated territory, and the Iraq government wanted the maximum in the way of royalties and in taxation. In addition, the necessary transit conventions had to be signed by the governments of Transjordania, Palestine, Syria and Lebanon.

British Oil

When the pipe line is working the output of British controlled oil will represent roughly one-thirty-fifth of the total world output.

The Iraq Petroleum Company, was formerly known as the Turkish Petroleum Company, has a capital of $20,000,000, and is an international concern in which a 23¾ per cent interest is held respectively by the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, the Royal Dutch Shell group, the Compagnie Francaise des Petroles, and an American group. The remaining five per cent is held privately by C. S. Gulbenkian.

Queen Helen Is Not V'ctim Of Poisoning

Bucharest, Rumania June 26—(AP)—Attaches of the royal palace authorized the Associated Press today to deny published reports that Queen Helen was suffering from poisoning taken by mistake.

A high authority said the queen was in a cheerful frame of mind and was in the best of health, physically and mentally. The reports were designated as "absurd inventions."

As for the same rumor concerning Mme. Magda Lupescu, it was said there was not even good ground for the assumption that she was in the country, let alone she had taken an overdose of a sedative in a pique at King Carol. The suggestion was scouted.

Fear Minnesota Banker Kidnaped

Glencoe, Minn., June 26—(UP)—Sheriff Alfred T. Beilhoffer today investigated the possibility of kidnaping in connection with the mysterious disappearance of H. A. Weckwerth, president of the People's State Bank of Glencoe.

Weckwerth's disappearance was first made public today by an order of the Board of Directors of the bank, closing the institution "because of the unaccountable disappearance of the president."

Failure of the directors and Mrs. Weckwerth to notify the Sheriff or other county officials of the disappearance led to the suspicion of kidnaping, the sheriff said.

A preliminary check up of the bank's books failed to reveal any irregularities, the State Banking Department announced.

Mrs. Weckwerth told the United Press, "I am not in a position to answer any questions about the whereabouts of my husband."

She admitted that her husband had disappeared last Saturday. Reports that she had received two letters from her husband were denied by Mrs. Weckwerth.

Mother Of Poison Victims Questioned

Lebanon, Ind., June 26—(UP)—Mrs. John W. Simmons, middle-aged farmwife whose two daughters were killed by poison-filled sandwiches at a family reunio last Saturday, submitted placidly to questioning today prior to the coroner's inquest into the deaths.

The inquest, where a re-enactment of the family picnic scene was planned with most of the 25 guests repeating their actions, will be followed within two days by a special grand jury session, Prosecutor Ben Scrifres announced.

Mrs. Simmons, who collapsed at her daughter's funeral last Wednesday, survived the questioning in good spirits, and the perspiring prosecutor and his assistants obtained no information of value.

The authorities were taken abock when after displaying to her a vial which had contained strychnine they obtained a denial that anything of that nature had been kept around her home. Where the vial was found was not announced. Mrs. Simmons said no one in her family had any opportunity to load the sandwiches with poison.

Walter Hage and Densmore Shute led George Duncan and Arthur G. Havers by 10 up.

Leo Diegel and Al Espinosa led Abe Mitchell and Fred Robson by 2 up.

Whiffy Cox and Bill Burke led Syd Easterbrook and E. R. Whitcombe by 1 up.

DIFFERENCES ON MORATORIUM TO BE NEGOTIATED

of the Third Rhineland zone in exchange for definite and complete settlement of the reparations program decided at Geneva in September, 1928.

"The government wishes to emphasize before world opinion the extent of the new sacrifice which is asked of France after all those which she has already accepted.

"To reply to the suggestion of President Hoover, the French government is ready to ask of the French Parliament, whose intervention is indispensible and whose decision is sovereign, that France abstain provisionally and during the delay of one year from keeping any payment coming from the Reich.

"But, considering the nature of the engagements of the Young plan freely accepted and very recently signed, the solemnity with which the definite and the non-deferable character of the unconditional annuities by which the necessary permanence of the principle of reparations has been recognized, the risk would be great of destroying confidence in the value of the signatures and contracts and thus to act contrary to the object in view, if, in the suspension of the payments proposed, the non-deferable annuities were treated like conditional annuitels.

The French government emphasizes in particular that formal assimilation has been established between the private debts of the Reich (the Young and Kreuger loans) and the unconditional annuities not yet mobilized. To suspend payment by Germany of the unconditional annuity while admitting that the interest on the Young loan placed before the public continues to be paid, would go directly against a fundamental principle and against expressed stipulations.

"The government considers that there is a moral interest of the first order that, even during the delay suggested by President Hoover, the payment of the unconditional annuity in no way be deferred.

"The French government, careful to collaborate widely with every attempt made to attenuate the consequences of the present crisis, believes it should make clear in the very interest of the success of this effort that the general suspension of payments alone would offer an insufficient remedy. The dangers now menacing German economy and more generally European economy, have another origin and are due notably to important credit restrictions or withdrawals of foreign funds.

"The solution of the German crisis, therefore, does not appear to lie only in the diminution of the charges on the budget of the Reich but in an extension of credit.

"That is why the French government declares its readiness, subject to the approval of parliament, to place at the disposal of the Bank of International Settlements a sum equal to its share of one year of the non-postponable annuity with the sole exception of the amounts necessary to the execution of the balances of the current contracts for payments in kind, a proceeding, which, moreover, is advantageous to German economy.

"In making this proposal, the French government expects that the other beneficiaries under the Young plan will adopt the same decisions and it even hopes that other measures may be taken to favor the beneficial restoration of credit and confidence in the world.

"The sums thus turned over to the Bank of International Settlements could be utilized at once for improving credit in Germany as well as in countries of central Europe, and especially those in which the suspension of the execution of the Young plan during one year might create financial or economic disturbance. It goes without saying that the amounts so employed would again become available at the expiration of the period of one year contemplated as the limit of the provisional suspension of the Young plan.

"The French government also believes that all necessary precautions should be taken in order that these sums as well as those to be derived from the easing of the budget of the Reich as a result of the suspension of the Young plan payments for one year may only be used for economic purposes, all danger of financing of dumping being eliminated.

"Lastly, it will be advisable to contemplate before the expiration of the period of one year an examination of measures to be taken by Germany for the resumption of her payments.

"The proposals of the French government and the adjustment, which will be suggested by the application of the American offer and which will necessarily be the subject of a subsequent exchange of views, thus appear to be perfectly compatible with the dominant idea of President Hoover's proposal.

"In placing at the disposal of the Bank of International Settlements, on the conditions contemplated above, her part in the unconditional annuity, France is deprived, during the suspension period, of what had been alloted to her an account of the charges which she has to meet for the reconstruction of her devasted regions.

"Without wishing to insist on the difference between the sums which she was received and the sums which she should have received, France recalls that the amount of her public debt is about four times of the debt of the Reich and that her effort at financial restoration carried on and accomplished by her own means barely four years ago should not be endangered.

"The French government can, therefore, affirm the solidarity of the French republic and of the republic of the United States at the moment when, faithful to their traditions, the two countries are cooperating in precautionary measures in a crisis which is considered grave. They have a right to hope that a response will be made to their international good will, by respect for treaties, and by the restoration of confidence between peoples, on which the future of peace depends.

carried across the field.

Two of the first enthusiastic admirers to reach the side of the fliers were the Americans, Jack Beck and Frank Briggs, who had crossed the ocean in advance, to be on hand to welcome them. Running across the field, Briggs reached the plane and seized Hillig by the hands.

"It was a good job, well done," he yelled into the defeaned ears of the aviator.

Hoiriis was taken to a waiting microphone where an announcer already was telling the world of their safe arrival.

"This is the biggest moment of my life," he said.

Hillig took his place at the microphone and said simply "I am thankful for your cordial reception."

Triumphal Parade

The fliers then were escorted around the airdrome in automobiles. After an hour of cheering, a procession of automobiles was formed and the triumphal parade into Copenhagen began. Hoiriis, his mother and Beck were in the first car. Hillig Miss Hoiriis and Briggs occupied the second. The Danish Minister of Transportation was in the third and was followed by 30 cars containing members of the reception committee.

American flags were on display throughout the city and the procession passed through a lane of cheering thousands.

The tumult never ceased, even after the fliers reached the Palace Hotel where great crowds surrounded the place, making the square ring with thunderous cheers.

The fliers had covered approximately 4,500 miles since leaving New York on June 19. The distance from New York to Harbor Grace is 1,150; from Harbor Grace to Krefeld about 2,800 to 3,000 miles depending on the course taken when the fliers lost their bearings, and from Krefeld to Copenhagen 380.

Hoiriis said he had no plans at present except to enjoy his stay in Denmark and take Hillig back to his birthplace in Germany.

"There has really been so much much fuss over me," he said. "I am happy to have reached our goal in spite of our difficulties, first the weather and then orientation. Perhaps the two landings in Germany took some of the glory off the feat but they couldn't be helped."

Hillig and Hoiriis were received in state at the city hall by Mayor Hebedol, and after the customary speeches of welcome, inscribed their names in Copenhagen's "Golden Book," which contains the signatures of all noted visitors to the city.

Tonight, the fliers will be entertained at a "family dinner."

NORTHERN LIGHTS

WHEN snow lies white on mountain height
And winter stalks by hill and glen,
The merry dancers of the night
Are at their joyous jigs again;
Above Ben Mhor their dancing floor
In silver radiance is spread,
With sound of waters on the shore
And star-shine winking overhead.

In green and blue of rainbow hue,
And red and yellow, clear as flame,
Their footsteps fall as list as dew,
These merry sprites without a name!
And to and fro they whirling go,
And tread their measures, gay and free.
But whence they come shall no man know,
And whence they vanish no man see!

Lee County War Mothers Met in G. A. R. Hall on Friday

The Lee Co. Chapter of American War Mothers met in the G. A. R. hall on Friday, June 19th, with a very good attendance.

The meeting opened in form and the secretary and Treasurer's reports were read and ordered placed on file.

A great deal of business was taken care of, and it was decided to hold the meetings as scheduled for the summer. Some of the members suggested that the interest in the work should be kept up to par and that could be done only by holding the meetings twice a month during the summer months.

A bill for groceries was allowed, and several other bills were ordered paid.

Several members were reported ill or had illness in their homes.

The Mothers want to thank the members of the Prairieville Social Circle for the generous sack of spools and the box of tin foil that they so kindly donated to the Mothers as these articles will be very much appreciated by the boys in the hospitals.

Arrangements for the annual picnic will be made at the next meeting and a good attendance is desired.

The meeting closed without form to meet July the third.

Brides Are Urged To Buy Good Furniture; It Pays In The End

Washington—(AP)—The plan of gradually accumulating beautiful pieces of furniture for the home, rather than spreading the available money thinly over a large number of rooms, is recommended by the National Committee on wood utilization in a booklet issued by the department of commerce.

The volume is called "Furniture, Its Selection and Use."

The chapter on budgeting apportions the funds for each room as follows; for furniture 65-70 per cent; for floor covering 15-20 per cent; for draperies, 8 per cent, for decorative accessories, 7 per cent.

California Girl Wins Gorgas Essay Contest; Walgreen Prize Won by Miss Dale

Washington, D. C., June 26—Miss Helen Dale, a recent graduate from Point Loma Junior-Senior High School in San Diego, California, today was awarded the Charles R. Walgren Prize of $500 for the winning essay in the Third Annual Gorgas Memorial Essay Contest.

The presentation was made on the Esplanade of the Pan American Union by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, President of the Institute. Present during the ceremony was a distinguished company of guests, which included Charles R. Walgren, Chicago, Illinois, donor of the award, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan American Union; the committee of national judges; Mrs Aileen Wrightson, daughter of the late General Gorgas; and several local officials of the Gorgas Memorial Institute.

The subject of this year's contest was "Keeping Fit: The Gorgas Program of Personal Health." High school juniors and seniors in 43 states participated. The Walgren prize of $20 was awarded each eligible State winner, and from these papers the winners were selected by a committee of judges composed of Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon-General, United States Public Health Service; Dr. William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education; and Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Director General of the American College of Surgeons.

In addition to the five one hundred dollar bills handed to her by Admiral Grayson, Miss Dale received $250 for travel allowance to Washington for the presentation. Other prize winners were: 2nd National Prize of $250, Mr. William Francis Bullock, Brandon, Mississippi; 3rd National Prize of $100, Miss Margaret E. Beal, Hammonton, New Jersey; 4th place, Honorable Mention, Miss Helen Ann Anderson, Tracy Minnesota; and 5th place, Honorable Mention. Miss Marion G. Mead, Danbury Connecticut.

In stressing the importance of the annual health examination as the most effective way of "Keeping Fit," Miss Dale said, "Serious trouble in later years may often be avoided by careful and regular inspection by the family doctor. The wonderful mechanism of our bodies has right to consideration equal that shown our cars, radios and other machinery which are given attentive overhauling."

Sports Styles Are Done Up Brown

White Touches Essential on Costumes

By JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

If you are done up brown, with the adequate amount of white to your outfit, you're bound to be in style this minute.

The vogue for this color combination is one of summber's outstanding developments. You can have the white outfit with brown accessories, or for more practical usage you can have all kinds of brown costumes, with white touches.

Probably the most valuable thing you could have in your daytime wardrobe would be one of the soft little knit suits, in some exclusive cut or other that you don't see duplicated everywhere.

For Sports or Motoring

If it is a picnic you have in mind, with some one with whom you want to make just the right impression, this type of outfit is most suitable. It has its own nonchalance. It is vastly becoming.

Pursuit Of Beauty Big Expense Item To Business Women

Washington —(AP)—The American business woman of today is a very different person from the working girl of 20 years ago.

Answers to a questionaire sent to 6,924 business women by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs reveal that at least two-thirds of them are regular patrons of beauty parlors, that about one-thrid of them swim and one-half enjoy housekeeping in their own apartments.

Permanent waves were found to be more popular with the business women than marcels, 2,903 of the 6,924 preferring the first method of coiffure and 1,360 the latter.

Based on the returns from the questionnaire it is estimated that the 60,000 business and professional women enrolled in the organization are spending about $800,000 annually on cosmetics and beauty treatments.

About 39 per cent of them drive their own cars, about one-tenth of them ride horseback and one-sixth play tennis.

It is estimated that about one-fourth of the 60,000 are married and about one-half of those married have children.

Knit Suits Are Suitable for Many Uses

One such costume, a sports suit that would be equally good on the golf links, or for a long motor or airplane trip, is of brown knitted wool, sheer and soft and not too warm, made with flaring sleeves to its belted jacket and a gored flare to its skirt.

zThere is a white knitted blouse with fine purling to make a round yoke, and a flaring peplum and little bows of brown and white add just the right decorative note.

There is a turban of self material braided to make a facing for it. And some of the new oxfords in white and brown are just the thing to wear with it. For hosiery, the new open lace mesh in lisle or silk are excellent. And for the brown and white outfits, the stockings are much darker.

Hard Times Hit Marriage and Divorce

By BESS FURMAN

Washington, June 26 (AP)—Hard times hit both the marriage and divorce markets last year, leaving a trail of lean, worn figures at the census Bureau.

Of forty states on which the figuring is finished, 33 showed decreases in marriage and 30 showed decreases in divorce.

Miss Alice V. Hagan, who for five years has written the annual Census Bureau study on marriage and divorce, ascribed the decreases to the fact that getting married and getting divorced costs money.

"It is well-known that the marriage rate responds quickly to the changes in economic condition, increasing in periods of prosperity and decreasing after a commercial crisis or during hard times," she said.

As for divorce, a large majority of the reports, Miss Hagan said, laid the lack of divorces at the door of the depression.

Aside from a few flourishing Gretna Greens, and a scattering of divorce havens, there is little likelihood of a rise in the rate of linkings and partings before 1932, Miss Hagan predicted.

Reno, Nevada, of course, is on the up-garde, marrying as merrily is it separates. California's law requiring preposting of marriage intent sends the couples to Reno.

And the six weeks divorce law already has ground out such a grist that Reno has written to the Census Bureau for more form cards to record divorces.

Women"s Relation To Present Day World Problems to Be Feature

A searching study of women's relation to present day world problems will be the chief feature of the Triennial Convention of the Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal church meeting in Denver, September 16th to 30th, a call for which has been issued by Miss Grace Lindley, Executive Secretary of this organization which speaks for 500,000 women from all parts of the world. Meeting contemporaneously with the Fiftieth General Convention of the Episcopal Church, the Auxiliary officials have listed five subjects—Family, Property and Economic Contacts, Inter-racial contacts, International Relations and Religious Thinking of Today, as representing the vital problems of the generation; and the greater part of the two weeks session of the Convention will be given over to an intensive study of these questions.

It is planned to have each subject presented by authorities at a general meeting of the Convention, and thereafter to conduct five open forums in which the delegates, five from each of the 117 dioceses and missionary districts of the Church will, under a selected leader, freely discuss the problems presented. The findings of each group will later be presented to the entire body of the Auxiliary for action and it is hoped that out of the study will come a worth while contribution toward the solution of the problems discussed. At least in the view of Miss Lindley, the resolutions will represent the matured views on vital problems of the day of a group of serious-minded women, representative not only of every section of the United States, but of such faraway places as China, Japan, the Philippine Islands and Alaska.

Some of the leading women of the country will be among those who will either make the presentations of the subjects on the five major topics, or lead group discussions. Mrs. F. Harper Sibley of Rochester, New York, Chairman of the Executive Board of the Auxiliary will present the subject of Family. Mrs. Sibley is well known in Rochester social circles and is one of the leaders in Church and Women's work generally throughout the country. She will depart shortly after the Convention for the Orient as a member of a Commission which is being financed by Mr. Rockefeller, to evaluate missionary projects in all parts of the world. Another speaker, who will present the problem of Property and Economic Contacts, will be Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr., Consultant on Industrial Relations of the Social Service Department of the Church, and a member in an advisory capacity of President Hoover's special Committee on Employment. Two speakers have been selected to present the problem of Inter-racial Contacts; Mr. Sterling Takauchi, a Japanese publicist who is at present doing research work at the University of Chicago, and Miss Claudia Hunter, a Wellesley graduate, with 25 years experience in the public school of Washington, D. C., who will speak for the Negro race. Rev. D H. McGregor, Ph. D. of Evanston, Ill., will discuss International Relations, while Religious Thinking of Today will be presented by the Rev. Angus Dun, of the Cambridge Theological School. Other speakers will be Mrs. John Glenn of the Church Mission of Help; Dr. Adelaide Case of Teachers' College, Columbia University, and Miss Florence L. Newbold, Executive Secretary of the Girl's Friendly Society of the United States.

In discussing this unusual departure from the procedure of Auxiliary Conventions, Miss Lindley, who has travelled widely and ranks high in women's work in the United States, said: "The program has been framed with the idea of affording an opportunity to Auxiliary members for thinking along the lines presented by each of the problems listed, with the ultimate hope that the Auxiliary may make a meritorious contribution toward the solution of the problems which the country faces today." The Auxiliary meeting will be held in the Central Presbyterian Church, Denver, beginning at noon on September 16th.

While this proposed study of vital national problems is one of the features of the Auxiliary Convention, great interest also centers in the presentation on the morning of Thursday, September 17, at a service of Holy Communion, of the 1931 gift of the organization to the General Church. The United Thank Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary, better known as "The U. T. O.", is a triennial gift made by the Auxiliary for the general missionary work of the Church. Inaugurated in 1889 with a gift of $2,188.64, the amount has steadily increased until in 1928 at the General Convention of the Church which met in Washington, the gift for the triennial was $1,101,450.40. Extraordinary efforts have been made during the past year to bring the total of the gift for the three years which will end at Denver up to a round million and half dollars.

The offering is presented to the Presiding Bishop of the Church at this special Communion service, and is a picturesque if solemn service at which representatives of the Auxiliary from all parts of the world carry to the altar the gift of their local organization, which is placed upon a golden alms basin. When Church officials approach the task of counting these various offerings, they are called upon to handle not only checks and United States currency, but a liberal sprinkling of Japanese yen, Chinese taels, Spanish pesetas, Mexican silver dolars, and a miscellaneous collection of coin from other countries in which the Church operates, including the lowly gourd of the Haitien bush dweller. In many instances these contributions are presented by women attired in the native costume of the country from which they come. At a mass meeting upon the evening of the day of the presentation, the total amount of the gift for the triennial is flashed at the appropriate moment in electric figures at the rear of the speakers' platform.

The five problems which will be considered by the Auxiliary convention, will be presented on five different days early in the Convention sessions, and open forums will be organized after each presentation. The women's Convention will be merged for one day, Friday, September 18th, into the General Convention, at a joint session of the House of Bishops, the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies and the Woman's Auxiliary. Miss Elizabeth Matthews of Cincinnati, will preside at the business sessions of this Auxiliary Convention.

LOWELL PARK A TREAT THESE HOT DAYS—

Talk about your lake resorts this hot weather—Dixonites talk, and with good reason, about our own wonderful resort, Lowell Park, cooler than any lake, for it lies along a cool moving body of water, Rock River, and during this hot weather a dip in the refreshing waters of the Rock is restful and comforting. If the water is somewhat muddy from recent rains, a shower at home remedies that. The beach is crowded each afternoon and evening.

S. S. CLASS PICNIC WEDNESDAY AT LOWELL—

The Sunday school class of St. Paul's Lutheran church, taught by Mrs. William Cooper, held a class picnic Wednesday at Lowell Park, with picnic lunch. Swimming and boat rides were enjoyed, and an enjoyable day was had by all.

FOURTH WILL BE FAMILY DAY—

The Fourth of July is designated as Family Day at the Dixon Country Club and there is to be a picnic supper for families, including the kiddies followed by fireworks and later by a dance for adults.

What Paris is Wearing

By K. D'ORSAY

PARIS—Paris is taking up the new fashion of bright color with a vengeance. Day clothes sparkle with billiard table greens and bright copper; evening clothes which were formerly restricted to sombre black, or shining white satin, are now as likely to be bright red or green or coral as any other color.

One of the striking new evening color combinations is brought out by wearing colored accessories against a background of another color. There is the example, already a classic, of jade jewelry worn with red. It is worn equally as often with black dresses trimmed with red, or with all-red dresses.

J. Suzanne Talbot often uses these two bright colors, with a black dress as a basis. Illustrated is one of her costumes that uses this color device; the dress is black, the jacket a tailored tuxedo in bright red, made of the new dull suede-like satin known as "angelskin;" the necklace, belt and bracelets are bright green jade. All four pieces of jewelry are what the French call "massif;" each portion of jade is exceptionally large in size and cut to give a coarse, rough-hewn effect.

Smarter And Snappier Accessories Add Glamour To Summer's Wardrobe

BY DIANA MERWIN
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

Paris— (AP)—Accessory angles of summer costumes are snappier and more clear cut than they have been in many years.

The boutonnieres, bags, glaves and glamorous trinkets with which smart women accent their warm weather wardrobes are marked by simplicity and elegance designed to enhance chic.

The smartest boutonnieres are tumes a gid or lizard tailored flower lawn or leather. For wool street cosperched on the coat lapel is the "dernier cri" in accent.

Silk and linen ensembles are finished with cotton flowers having crisp linen leaves, lawn, organdy and net being the favorite fabrics. Invariably the boutonniere reflects the lighter or more brilliant one of the ensemble.

Bags are the essence of simplicity in design. Antelope and suede are passing out of the bag picture, while pin seal and morocco take their place. The pochette is the smartest shape and generally is made of dark leather reflecting the somber tones in the costume.

Gloves are plain and serviceable worn one size larger than the hand requires to give a nonchalant air.

The pull-on suede, long enough to wrinkle over the upper arm and reflecting the color of hat and bag or blouse and boutonniere, is the most fashionable design.

Necklaces generally are eschewed for daytime wear by smart women, although those who find costumes incomplete without a throat ornament may choose choker ropes of tiny beads or silk chenille.

The vanity case of the modern miss is compact and oblong. Tiny boxes of onyx, lapis or green agate sparingly ornamented with dull gold or silver are the favorites.

Had Awful Bearing Down Pains

"Better after First Bottle"

"AFTER my little girl was born, I was in an awful condition. I had bearing down pains and had to lie down a great deal. I read what other women had to say about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

CELEBRATING THE FOURTH.

Every year firecrackers, skyrockets, eyes and legs and arms are offered up, with a joyful noise, as our sacrifice on the altar of freedom. It seems to be an accepted fact that the Fourth of July must have its casualties just as Valley Forge and Gettysburg had theirs. The bombs bursting in air and the rockets' red glare have become a part of a grand old custom.

Last year there were 12 deaths in the United States that were due to fireworks. But there were hundreds of celebrants who were injured because of the misdirected revival of the spirit of '76.

The attempt to license the sale and use of the picturesque explosives has helped greatly in decreasing the mortality rate but the death parade is still much too long.

Deep within every small boy there is a desire to let off steam, to make a noise so big that all the neighbors will come running. The Fourth of July gives boys a chance to touch a match to a round red firecracker and run.

But when the smashing sound that is going to bring release to their bottled energy doesn't come, youngsters inevitably creep back to investigate. And a boy's curiosity and the spark in the fuse that connects with the powder under the bright red paper have a habit of getting together at the same time.

Boys aren't the only ones who foster the desire for a mighty sound. Their fathers have it, too. With a gay pretense at showing Johnny and Tommy how it is done, they nonchalantly light a giant cracker. And fathers aren't immune from disaster.

When there is something definite and necessary to be gained in the risk of life certainly no one should hesitate. A life laid down in the promotion of some principle that is of service to humanity is never lost. One that is sacrificed carelessly is really never lived.

Life presents enough necessary hazards.

Somehow, activated by the spirit of independence, people take graver risks in motoring, swimming and setting off explosives on Independence Day than on any other day. This spirit has been increasing. There were more casualties last year than either of the two preceding years.

If the twentieth century death parade is going to decrease we must realize that though the victory is won, and the flag floats high, life still needs a safeguard. We must learn to celebrate more carefully.

THE SUBMARINE'S FUNCTION.

The difficulties that have beset the submarine Nautilus on its voyage across the Atlantic indicate that mankind is still a long way from equaling the imaginary submarines of Jules Verne.

Verne's famous submarine, in addition to having living quarters as palatial as those on an ocean liner, was the last word in sturdiness. The ship in which Sir Hubert Wilkins hopes to go to the North Pole seems to fall considerably short of that mark. Extensive repairs are necessary before the craft has even reached the base of her Arctic voyage.

In plain truth, a submarine is an exceedingly delicate mechanism. It is extremely valuable in war, of course; but one wonders if any submarine will ever prove really worth-while for any purpose except that of war-time destruction.

All a fellow has to do is to swear once or twice and a reputation is fastened on him for life.—Major General Smedley D. Butler.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The toy shop man just bowed his head, smiled at the Tinymites and said, "I love to have the little folks drop in and see my toys. I am usually busy as can be. I make these things myself, you see. I guess I have most everything to please wee girls and boys."

Said wee Clowny, "I'm not fooled at all. I know what's hanging on that wall. Big stockings, made for Santa Claus to carry once a year. I have had one every Christmas morning since the day that I was born. Yours look the same as Santa's Say, what are they doing here?"

"Oh, I made those for Santa Claus to use next Christmas eve because he is afraid that he will run real short. I am glad to help him out. Right in my shop they are going to stay until he next starts out in his sleigh. If you are real good you will get one at Christmas time, no doubt."

And then they spied fine dolls galore and bigger tops upon the floor. The Tinies spent about an hour, just looking around the nice place. The Travel Man then said, "I think I'd like some lunch and a cool drink." "Gee, so would I," snapped wee Clowny, with a smile upon his face.

Right after the lunch the Travel Man said, 'Well, boys, we'd best leave Japan. I've hired a monstrous seaplane. To the Phillippines we will hie. Today's the best time for our start. With short goodbys we will depart. I'm sure you all will get a thrill from sailing through the sky."

So, in about an hour or so the Tinymites all shouted, "Oh! That plane is sure a beauty How are we to get aboard?" The Travel Man replied, "By boat. There is one now waiting, you will note." They rowed out to the plane and then its trusty engine roared.

(The Tinymites arrive in Manila in the next story.)

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

ARRIVAL OF U. S. TROOPS

On June 26 1917, the first contingents of the first United States Army to fight in Europe arrived in France, under the command of Major General William L. Sibert.

News that the Americans were arriving spread rapidly and by the time the troopships arrived alongside the wharfs where the men were to debark, thousands of persons were on hand to greet them.

A wild welcome was shrieked by whistles of craft in the harbor and the welcoming throngs burst into song. The American soldiers were spontaneously dubbed "Sammies" by the excited French crowds, to distinguish them from the British "Tommies."

General Sibert took up his quarters at a camp not distant from the coast as commander of the first United States force sent abroad under General Pershing ,as commander- in chief.

Daily Health Talk

FIRST AID IN DROWNING

To describe in a health column the methods of instituting artificial breathing is like teaching swimming by correspondence, but it can be done if one follows instructions.

There are several methods of inducing artificial respiration, but the simplest and most effective is the so-called prone pressure, or Shafer method. It is applied as follows:

The body is placed face downward with a roll of clothing placed under the stomach. One arm is stretched upward, the other bent to form a rest for the head.

The head is turned to one side, the mouth opened and the tongue pulled out so as to establish a clear passage to the lungs. The fingers are inserted into the mouth and poked gently as far as the larynx to make sure no foreign bodies are obstructing the air passage.

The person administering artificial respiration straddles the body with his knees to the level of the thigh. Both hands are spread over the lower part of the patient's back with the thumbs nearly touching the spine. The arms are held somewhat stiff.

The operator then presses forward with the weight of his body on the arms. The lower ribs are compressed downward and inward and the weight is then lifted and the ribs allowed to relax without lifting the hands away from the patient's body.

This swinging movement should be carried on rhythmically at the rate of 15 times a minute.

Artificial respiration should not be given up until it has been applied for at least 45 minutes.

Though we sometimes read of persons who have been revived after having been submerged for as long as one-quarter of an hour, few live after having been in the water for more than five minutes.

Those who, because of fainting or becoming paralyzed through fright, sink without filling their lungs with water are much more likely to be resuscitated.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

By Ahern

One of nature's curiosities is the difference in size between a mother kangaroo and her young. The mother stands four or more feet high and weighs in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. The young when first born, are only a little longer than one inch and weigh less than a mouse.

Good—they've got to be good!

ARIZONA OPENS WAR ON AUTO TAX DODGERS

Truck Operators Under Scrutiny of State's New Traffic Squad

By GEORGE D. CRISSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

Phoenix, Arizona, —(UP)—Certain truck operators of adjacent states who have been avoiding payment of Arizona license fees will find their schemes worthless, due to the observance of George W. P. Hunt, Arizo'ans 71-year-old governor.

With the start of the fiscal year, July 1, the first squad of traffic officers ever to serve Arizona will roll out on the highways. Their first job will be to prevent methods of fee dodging which the governor recently exposed.

Not long ago the governor spent a week-end in Yuma, on the Arizona -California border, and while there noticed a California truck bearing one Arizona license plate. Shortly thereafter he saw another California truck using the other half of the set of license plates.

Fee-Dodging System

This disclosed a fee-dodging system—that of buying one set of license plates for two California trucks operating in Arizona.

Interested, the governor learned that some California truck operators leave Arizona plates just west of the state line where a truck to enter Arizona picks them up. The truck, on the return trip, leaves the plates, to be used by another.

Governor Hunt told the State Highway Commission of his finding, with the result that the squad of traffic officers will watch for tax evasions of this sort.

Check License Plates

Another task of the traffic officers will be to check up on foreign license plates used by permanent residents of Arizona. Hundreds of Arizonians, it is said, but California plates at $3 a ret and use them here, evading California's personal tax law because of the lack of a permanent address in that state and dodging the Arizona personal property tax because the car is not registered in this state.

It is not at all unlikely that the increase in fees paid to Arizona will more than offset the expense of the traffic squad of 14 men

Picking Your Job

This is one of a series by leaders in different professions and lines of business, in which they tell young men and young women about the opportunities and the problems in the fields in which they have gained distinction. Alan G. Warner is vice-president of the Chatham-Phenix National Bank and Trust Co. He is a former President of the American Institute of Banking. He discusses banking as a career.

By ALAN G. WARNER
As Told to J. V. FitzGerald

Firts of all you should have good character, that is, those high qualities and traits that make you a person whose word is his bond and whose conduct and ability are not open to question, if you are to become a banker. Character is the foundation stone of confidence upon which credit is built and banking is very largely concerned with credit. It goes without saying that you must possess honesty and by that I mean honesty in small things as well as in big. You must be honest enough to face the facts even though they lead to a distasteful conclusion.

You will need a sound sense of values, a certain financial shrewdness, a thrifty disposition, and a natural inclination toward matters of business if you are to climb high on the banking ladder. Such traits as these should be developed at a fairly early age.

You can make your way in banking without the help of advanced education, if you are cut out of the right pattern. Some financiers say that the sooner you begin your career, after a good high school education, the sooner you are likely to reach the top.

Many colleges offer excellent courses in finance and banking for those of you who are determined to follow such a career as your life work. But if you are not able to avail yourself of such opportunities, banks and other financial houses provide educational courses for employees.

You should have a good knowledge of commercial arithmetic and geography. And neat hand writing even in this machine age is helpful. After you are placed it would be wise, if you haven't already done so, to study economics, accounting and commercial law. You should keep in touch with the business conditions in different parts of the country and familiarize yourself with factory production, crops, marketing and like matters.

Your initial pay, regardless of your educational qualifications, will not likely exceed $20 or $25 a week in the biggest banks and it may run considerably less in smaller institutions.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in the word and doctrine.—Timothy 5:17.

Tell me what you find better, or more honorable than age. Is not wisdom entailed upon it?—Shakerly Marmion.

Famous "Red-Head" is Now a Blond

With Her Boy Friend, Rex

Her movie contract ended and her flaming red hair turned blond Clara Bow who taught millions of Americans that "it" is something besides a pronoun, is shown here in her latest pictures just before she left the film colony for Rex Bell's Nevada ranch, where she hopes to recover her health completely. Above is a striking closeup of the "It" girl, while in this lower picture she is shown locking the back door of her Beverly Hills home as Bell, one of her few friends who have remained loyal, places her luggage in an automobile. She has a smile in both pictures that seems to indicate she is feeling much better now.

'Twould Make Good Arno Cartoon

Just what happened in the wee small hours of that morning in Reno isn't exactly clear, but Cornelius Vandervilt, Jr., lower right, through his attorney, says he became so insensed when he saw Mrs. Vanderbilt, upper right, and Peter Arno, left, divorce-seeking cartoonist, alight from an auto in front of the Vanderbilt home that he obtained a gun and started after the artist. Arno, who Vanderbilt accuses of paying "persistent attentions" to his wife, lived nearby and had started walking toward his home. Half way over to the Arno residence, Vanderbilt says he came to his senses and returned home. Then he discovered that the gun wasn't loaded! Arno denies knowledge of the event, but Reno's police chief says the artist complained that he had been threatened with bodily harm by Vanderbilt.

George Watkins, brilliant young St. Louis outfielder, stole a game at Brooklyn yesterday. The teams were battling on even terms up to the seventh inning and Dazzy Vance had not allowed a man to reach first in his duel with Paul Derringer. Then Watkins, the 21st man to face Vance, beat out a bunt. Jim Bottomley singled and sent him to third. As Vance threw to first to hold Bottomley on the sack, Watkins streaked for home and slid in for a perfect steal of the base and the game.

Vance allowed only one more hit but Derringer kept the Robins' six blows scattered and prevented any Brooklyn scoring.

Watin's feat enabled the Cards to gain a full game on their leading rivals, New York and Chicago, both of which lost. The Giants could not solve Benny Frey's pitching and dropped a 3 to 0 decision to the Cincinnati Reds. They got only six hits. Chicago's Cubs were on the short end of a 4 to 3 score in a tight duel with the Boston Braves. Fred Frankhouse held the Cubs to seven hits while Earl Sheely drove in two Boston counters with a triple and Hack Wilson muffed a fly to pave the way for the winning counter.

Clise Dudley turned in another fine pitching performance, holding Pittsburgh to five hits in the fourth National League game while the Phillies pounded out a 5 to 1 victory. Chuck Klein's 19th homer featured.

The sudden rejuvenation of the St. Louis Browns and the steady play of the Washington Senators in the American League were combined to reduce Philadelphia's lead to a single game. The Browns took two games from the Athletics, winning the first 6 to 5 and the second 8 to 5. A homer by Red Kress with two on helped break George Earnshaw's winning streak of 12 games in the first contest while heavy hitting behind Welter Stewart turned the trick in the second.

The Senators, he'd to four hits by Vic Sorrell, defeated Detroit 4 to 3. Sorrell gaveseven walks and Spencer followed them with three hits to drive in all the Senator runs.

The New York Yankees went on a home run spree with Ben Chapman in the lead to take two games from Chicago. Chapman hit for the circuit twice, winning the opener 10 to 9 with a ninth inning homer after Babe Ruth had clouted his 16th four bagger and Lou Gehrig his 17th. George Pipgras held the Sox to four hits in the second clash to win his first game of the year 9 to 2 while Chapman inserted another homer in the middle of a six-run rally in the third inning.

The Boston Red Sox made it two straight over Cleve'and to end their series on even terms, winning 8 to 3. Bob Kline yielded 12 hits but kept them scattered and the Sox collected two more, bunching them for five runs in the fourth.

Nothing more striking, in evidence of Notre Dame's exceptional football situation, has come to hand than the report of spring training at South Bend, as set beside the records of other colleges in Maj. John L. Griffith's Athletic Journal.

"We had about 350 come out for spring footbal' practice," says the Notre Dame report, filed by Jess Harper, "but this number gradually reduced to about 250. In the last practice game about 200 took part. We are planning on having about 700 boys play football this fall. This will include our varsity, freshmen, and inter-hall teams. We plan at Notre Dame to equip any boy who desires to play football and is willing to come out regularly for practice. The interest in football at Notre Dame appears to be increasing each year."

To gather an idea of what this mass turn-out means in man-power compare it with the reports of 55 boys at Texas A. & M. spring dri l, 88 at Georgia Tech, 70 at University of Texas, 96 at Missouri, 90 at Detroit, 50 at Oregon.

The nearest approach in numbers to the Notre Dame array are the reports of 132 at Ohio State and 165 at Purdue, which, however, had 463 boys at some form of grid iron duty last fall.

COACHES REPORT—

In furnishing a comprehensive review of college sport for the 1930-31 campaign, Major Griffith, the Big Ten Commissioner, furnishes specific proof that it "has been a year of expansion in athletics." He cites the growth of college baseball and golf. But football is dearest to the hearts of the athletic directors and coaches reporting to the major. From the reports emerge these facts and fancies:

Jimmy Phelan, Washington—"I do not find any evidence of athletic insanity on the part of our student body. We try to give the freshmen some knowledge of fundamental football."

Dr. John B. Sutherland, Pittsburgh—"A superlative amount of interest is shown in the coming football campaign through my fireside talks at the various fraternity houses."

Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, West Point—"We try to instill in our squads the idea that they are out for an afternoon's fun."

B. W. Bierman, Tulane—"..... undesirable features (in football) are being eliminated. Faculty administration is growing and football is getting nearer its proper place in the educational scheme."

W. A. Alexander, Georgia Tech—"We had only one man in the institution whom we had counted on as a varsity candidate who said he did not want to engage in the spring work."

Glenn Warner, Stanford—"This idea that college boys are compelled to play football for any reason like student sentiment, etc., is all tommy-rot. I do not see how anyone can say football is over-emphasized."

Clyde Littlefield, Texas—"The problem of recruiting athletic material is being solved slowly. What we need is a 'gentlemen's agreement' in our (Southwest) Conference."

Day's News From Training Camps Of Champ, Challenger

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Conneaut Lake Park, Pa., June 26—(AP)—Max Schmeling begins the welcome slide over the peak of his training today.

The world's heavyweight champion, rested and refreshed after a day's lay off, will begin to bear down on his sparring partners for the next three days to get himself on edge for the defense of his title against Young Stribling in Cleveland's new municipal stadium a week from tonight.

Schmeling will box six to eight rounds daily. He will have plenty of opportunity to perfect his famous straight right hand smash to the head, his new inside right uppercut and his left hook.

The German enters the final week of training full of energy and confidence. His present weight of 190¾ pounds is regarded as perfect poundage with five more days of work ahead of him. He tipped the beam at 190¾ yesterday, a pound and one quarter above the figure he will scale on the night of the fight. He probably will melt off a pound or so between today and Sunday as the weather has turned blistering hot and the sun beats down intensely on Schmeling's canvas-shaded outdoor ring.

Joe Jacobs, the German's manager, and Trainer Max Machon, were highly elated over the fact that Max was able to tip the beam over the 190 pound notch. The German's private cook, Otto Weinmann, regards Schmeling as a heavy eater and has been filling him up with tastily cooked vegetables and meats in the hope of building him up so that he will not reduce too rapidly in the final days of boxing in the intense heat.

Schmeling welcomed the day away from the training grind yesterday. He rested from boxing, but not from golf. It was stifling hot, yet the German played 18 holes in the morning and whacked the ball for another round of 18 holes late afternoon, returning to his cottage in the cool of the evening.

With the fight just a week away the guards at Schmeling cottage on the shores of Conneaut Lake have been doubled to keep curiosity seekers and well wishers away. It is expected that more than 5,000, a record crowd wil ljam Schmeling's outdoor arena for the day's boxing.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Geauga Lake, O., June 26 —(AP)—Fighters must be something like baseball pitchers. One day they feel great and all their stuff is working Another day they also feel great, but they can't get a man out.

For instance Frank Cawley, a clever young heavyweight sparring partner of Tommy Loughran, wandered into Bill Stribling's training camp for the first time Tuesday night to work with the southern challenger for Max Schmeling's heavyweight title. Bill looked great physically but he could do little with Cawley. Frank was fat and out of condition but he did himself proud.

But last night, with a couple of days training to work on, Cawley tackled the husky Georgian again. He got himself thoroughly pasted with left hooks to the head and body and a few times winging right hands thudded off his head guard. He scarcely laid a glove on Stribling. It was by far the most impressive work out the southerner has turned in in seventeen sparring sessions since starting training here for the July 5 battle.

In all Stribling went ten rounds, six of the mboxing with Cawley, Tan Sam Ward, Frank Kitts and a welterweight named Mickey Dugan, who was in there for a one round speed drill. Stribling hit each man every time he wanted to with any punch he cared to use. He was so fast Dugan could not touch him with a left jab. He cut loose rarely but it was apparent that he could have swept all four of his mates out of there in short order if he had to double up on his heavy punches. His left hook to the body was in particularly working order.

"Sometimes I don't do well when I think I'm going to," Stribling said after the workout, "but usually I can tell myself what was wrong. Mostly it's something I liked especially well at supper and I ate too much. Sometimes I look all right but I'm not feeling keen."

No Foul At Fourth Of July Reno Bout

Reno, Nev., June 26—(UP)—There will be no decision on a foul to mar the scheduled 20-round fight July Fourth between Paulino Uzcudun and Max Baer, it was decreed today by Promoter-Referee Jack Dempsey

As third man in the ring, Dempsey said he will enforce a "no stalling" rule and that the foul escape has been blocked by an agreement whereby the fighter committing a flagrant infraction of the rules will forfeit his share of the purse. On the other hand, various edicts against rabbit punches, kidney punches and the like have been thrown overboard and the two can mix as thickly as they choose.

Odds remained at around three to one today on the Basque, but few who filled Reno gambling houses expect the quotation will hold at the ringside. Baer's condition was not the best up to a week ago, but Dempsey took him aside for a fatherly talk and since then he has trained faithfully

Dempsey himself has been sparring for the benefit of training camp fans figuring a prospective 20-round session will require stamina on the part of the referee as well as the fighters.

Enraged Bear In Attack Upon Man

Lyons, Colo., —(UP)— Carl Brke, a rancher, narrowly escaped death in a battle with an enraged bear. He discovered the bear battling a cow who sought to protect her calf. The mother instinct in the cow was strong, and the ordinarily passive bovine was stabbing frantically with her horns in an endeavor to keep the bear from the tiny calf. The battle, however, was unequal, and Brke ran home for a gun.

He returned with a shotgun, and fired both barrels at the bear, shattering one of its fore-legs. The bear promptly charged its new attacker, and Brke fled for his life into a barn. The bear followed, and Brke jumped from stall to stall, to escape the maddened animal.

The rancher finally escaped and got into the house again, securing additional shells. As he emerged, the bear, limping away, turned again to the battle.

Rising on its hind feet, the animal waddled toward the man. Brke fired, but the bear continued its awesome walk toward him. The rancher fired again and again. At the sixth shot, when it was a yard from him, the bear toppled over, dead.

PETROLLE TAKES GREAT FIGHT IN NEW YORK GARDEN

He And Saurez Stage Intensely Interesting Scrap Last Eve

By DIXON STUART
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, June 26—(UP)—Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, had a clear track toward the world's lightweight championship today after his nine-round knockout of Justo Suarez at Madison Square Garden last night in one of the greatest fights of this or any other season.

The victory clearly established Petrolle as the ranking contender for Canzoneri's title and convinced the 14,000 spectators that not only Petrolle but his victim also is destined ultimately to attain the championship.

Suarez was sidetracked temporarily through his defeat but it is doubtful if any lightweight except Petrolle could have accomplished the feat.

The "Little Wild Bull of the Pampas" was defeated convincingly enough, but not until he had made a heroic stand in a battle which ranks with the epochal contest between his fellow countryman, Luis Firpo and Jack Dempsey as one of the most thrilling ring bouts of recent years.

Suarez, like Firpo in the bout with Dempsey, barely escaped a knockout during the first thirty seconds of action. And, like Firpo, he staged a courageous rally.

More action was crammed into the first round of the bout than usually is offered in a complete fight. Petrolle rushed from his corner and staggered Suarez with a stiff right uppercut. He followed with a flury of right and left hooks to the head driving the bewildered Suarez to the canvas. Justo fell flat on his face but was up without a count, and down flat on his back almost as quickly when Petrolle shot a left to the jaw.

Changed Tactics

The Argentine was up again without a count. Petrolle drove him about the ring but Suarez stood up under the punishment. Suddenly he shifted from his orthodox fighting style to a southpaw stance. Petrolle was unable to solve the new style and Justo took over the play. He opened up with a driving offense and soon had Petrolle reeling.

He continued to hold the upper-hand throughout the second round During this great rally Suarez looked every inch a champion and it appeared certain that he was to score a knockout victory.

Petrolle took his turn at rallying to earn an even break in the third round. Fighting a cool, cagey, battle, the veteran finally found Suarez's vulnerable spot. A had left hook to the body did the trick. Suarez wincing and showing distress

The blow virtually decided the fight, for from then on Petrolle concentrated on a body attack which soon took the sting out of Suarez's punch.

Suarez was forced to the defensive and the necessity of using both hands to ward off Petrolle's body attack made it impossible for him to do any real offensive work.

Justo kept his guard low to ward off the body blows, and this kept his face open for Petrolle's flailing fists. Whenever Suarez lifted his glove Petrolle bent him almost double with the terrific body attack.

Before the end of the seventh round Suarez barely was able to remain upright. He fought the next two rounds solely on his courage

As the ninth opened, Petrolle drove Suarez to the ropes. A flurry of head punches sent Justo almost to his knees but he still was game Billy swung a hard right which landed flush on the chin and Suarez fell flat on his back.

He tried hard to get up but his muscles were not as strong as his spirt. The defeat was his first in a ring career which includes 50 amateur and 21 professional bouts.

Three Americans Are Left In Wimbledon

Wimbledon, England, June 26—Interest in the British tennis championships swung back to the men's singles today as the last sixteen battled away for places in the quarter-finals.

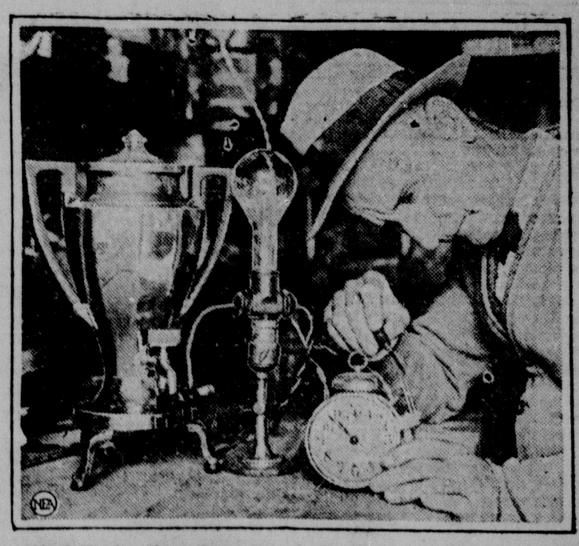

America's three survivors, Frank Shields and Sidney B. Wood of New York, and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, were to swing into action Shields and an Ryn against major opposition.

Shields ,seeded No 3 in the championship, clashes with John S. Oliff of Great Britain, a steady match player. Van Ryn was pitted against the French star, Christian Boussus in one of the best matches today Wood apparently had an easier path to the quarter finals for his opponent, C. E. Malfroy who boasts only a New Zealand reputation.

Other survivors n men's singles included Jean Bootra of France, seeded No. 1; six Britons, the Japanese Jiro Satoh; the Austrian, Herman W. Artens, and the German, G. von Cramm.

Of the three American survivors in women's singles, only Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper of Oakland, Cal., and Helen Jacobs of Berkeley,, Calif., were to play, Mrs. Marjorie Gladman an Ryn of Philadelphia having an off day.

Commission Hearing About Rate Boosts

Washington, June 26—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission is hearing what the country thinks of the proposed increase in railroad freight rates.

Some of it opposes the raise in no uncertain terms; some favors it as definitely in the belief that it will help restore prosperity.

Communications have come from every section of the country. One even was from Lucerne, Switzerland.

The present crop of communications consists of letters, post cards and telegrams. Farmers, bankers, investors, business men, statesmen, laborers, business organizations, state officials, "cranks" and profound students of economics are among the writers.

Dancer Plunged From Window To His Death

Chicago, June 26—(AP)—Andreas Pavley, famous classic dancer, plunged to death today from the sixteenth floor of the McCormick hotel. He was 45 years old.

The dancer's body, clad in pajamas, fell to the cement paving in an alley, narrowly missing a hotel clerk. The screen on his window had been smashed by a portable radio set.

John Collins, manager of the hotel, said Pavley had moved into a cheaper room three weeks ago saying he had suffered financial reverses. Police found no notes in his room.

Internationally known as a dancer, Pavley had led the ballet of the Chicago Civic Opera Company for several years and formerly was first dancer of the San Carlo Apera. He was also a former associate of Mme. Pavlowa.

Of Dutch parentage, Pavley was born in the Dutch East Indies, a member of a family of military men.

Gangster, Officer Wounded In Battle

Chicago, June 26—(AP) — Police today were trying to untangle the ragged ends of a gangster chase last night which ended only after Detective John O'Connor was wounded in the right shoulder and Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, beer baron, was slightly injured when he fell from a friend's automobile.

Two squads of officers pursued two automobiles of gangsters which, they said, were gunning for O'Donnell. Occupants of the larger gangster car fired upon the police auto driven by O'Connor, one bullet lodging in his shoulder The gangsters escaped.

The police returned to find O'Donnell standing on a curbstone with a sprained shoulder. He said he sustained his injuries when he heard the shooting and came out of his house to investigate and accepted a ride from a friend. He said nothing to the officers of the 60 machine gun slugs which police said were fired at the front of his house by occupants of the gangster automobile.

Today Is Day Of Babes In the Wood; Don't Rescue Them

Washington—Today is the day of Babes in the Wood, Fields and the Stream. Everywhere the young of the wildfolk are more or less hopeless but learning to fend for themselves under the careful training of their parents. People, finding these little babies and think ing them to be abandoned, often cause their death by picking them up and taking them home with them. Chances are the parents are nearby feeding or else driven off by the approach of the stranger, officials of the American Game Association point out in urging those who go afield not to try to "rescue" the little wild babies.

Just such a near-tragedy of the wild folk was enacted by kind-hearted but misguided motorists, and the courage of parental love illustrated in Amador County, California, recently.

Several motorists were driving on the Alpine Hi-Way above Pine Grove when they saw two baby Killdeers near the road. They stopped and a woman in the party "rescued" the little birds, apparently abandoned. The party motored on for several miles, discussing the apparent bird-abandonment. One of the men held the parents must have been nearby, and persuaded the party to return. They did. He argued that it was murder to take the babies away; for they would not live in captivity.

Upon reaching the spot where the little birds had been picked up, the parent Killdeers flew at the car. And when it stopped, they attacked it, both pecking savagely at the tires. The youngsters were placed on the ground, and one of the birds, apparently the mother, led them away to safety while the other kept up his attack upon the car, distracting the attention of the occupants until she and he young had disappeared. Then he flew away.

Another great destroyer of wild life, particularly at this time, are self hunting dogs and cats. Seth Gordon, president of the Association urges that everyone keep his or her dog and cat confined during this critical period of the breeding and brooding season; for nests as well as young are destroyed by these marauders.

FINEST CHOCOLATE CREAMS ARE DIPPED ONE AT A TIME

For a Similar Reason Hills Bros. Roast Their Coffee a Few Pounds at a Time

Candy makers agree that when creams are dipped one at a time in the chocolate, the coating is applied much more evenly than when dipped in big batches.

According to the results achieved by Hills Bros., this same principle holds true in roasting coffee. By roasting a few pounds at a time by a continuous process, instead of large batches, a uniform roast is certain.

This process originated, and patented by Hills Bros., is called "Controlled Roasting." "Controlled" is a most appropriate word because during the entire roasting process there is automatic regulation. This control accurately regulates the flow of coffee through the roasters—also the temperature. Every berry of the rare blend is roasted to a degree that insures perfection. No other coffee has the same delicious flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee.

Freshness is always guaranteed in Hills Bros. Coffee because it is packed in vacuum cans. By this method, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out, and kept out of the can. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can. Sold everywhere by grocers.

GOOD THOUGHTS

Everywhere thou art a citizen of the city of the world.
Marcus Aurelius.

To me remains nor place nor time
My country is in every clime.
I can be calm and free from care
On any shore, since God is there.
Madam Guyon

Seek the peace of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captives, and pray unto the Lord for it: for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace.
Jeremiah.

During Jesus' entire lifetime, his people were subject to the government of Rome. Jesus did not expend one iota of effort in attempting to overthrow this government. His own people were desirous of a leader who would do that very thing and rejected him because he did not promise to do this. He went faithfully about his business of establishing the government of God, and if one will but obey the heavenly law of this unchanging spiritual government, he can prosper no matter to what human government he seems to be subject.

Physicians Solve Mystery Ailment

Harrisburg, Pa., —(UP)— Doctors of the Harrisburg Hospital believed today they had correctly diagnosed the mysterious ailment which has confined Mark Enders, 16, Halifax, Pa., to the hospital for two months.

Enders was admitted last April when he was found unconscious while fighting a forest fire. He was treated for smoke suffocation.

He showed no signs of improvement and seemed to be a victim of hemolysis in which the red corpuscles of the blood dissolve.

Other physicians diagnosed his ailment as "purpura hemorrhagica." and treated him accordingly. He was delirious at times. Hemorrhages broke out at several points and his skin at times flushed red and oozed blood.

Blood transfusions were given and for several days thereafter the boy raved. Later he sank back into a semi-comatose state.

Other diagnoses were made and other treatments applied.

One day a veteran physician reached the conclusion that Enders had been bitten by a snake or a noxious insect.

So a form of treatment to arrest such a condition is now being applied, and the physicians believe that they are on the right track at last.

MOTOR HEARSE KILLS MOOSE

SMITH INSANE STATE EXPERT DECLARES NOW

He May Be Able To Tell After Time What Happened To Him

Des Moines, June 26—(AP)—Dr. George Donohoe of the Cherokee state hospital for the insane, after further examinations of John M. Smith Perry insecticide manufacturer, today reiterated his opinion that Smith was mentally unbalanced.

He said a skull fracture suffered in a Norfolk, Nebr., railroad accident in 1923 had caused a depression on Smith's brain.

Donohoe's examination today consisted mostly of letting Smith talk. The doctor said the talk was of a rambling nature about the time Smith was governor of Iowa, of fishing trips and other incoherent details. Smith ran for Governor on the Farmer-Labor ticket in 1930.

Donohoe said he was convinced Smith was not shamming mental illness to avoid questioning regarding his disappearance after his burning truck containing a corpse was found near Denison, Iowa, Feb 3. Smith reappeared at Garner Monday night, when he was found along a roadside bound and gagged.

Attorney General John Fletcher and other authorities were conferring today regarding what the next step would be in disposing of Smith's case.

Donohoe said it was possible that over a period of time Smith may recall parts of his ventures since his disappearance, enabling authorities to obtain clues as to the identity of the body found in his truck. The body was erroneously identified as Smith's and the mistake discovered later when insurance companies holding more than $50,000 in policies on Smith's life requested its exhumation.

NEW TELESCOPE FOR NAVY TO BE LATEST DESIGN

Plans Ready for a 40-Inch Reflector With Many Refinements

Washington —(UP)— Dr. George Willis Ritchey, designer of the 100-inch reflecting type telescope in use at Mt. Wilson, soon will build for the U. S. Naval observatory here an instrument that, because of several new and secret refinements, will rival in scientific importance the one in California.

Dr. Ritchey was given the contract to build a 40-inch reflecting type of instrument shortly after British scientists revealed plans for the erection of a 36-inch telescope at the famous Greenwich Observatory.

Naval officials have been at work on plans for the instrument for over three years and sub-contracts will be let immediately. Dr. Ritchey expects to take about 20 months for the construction.

$225,000 Appropriation

The last Congress authorized a complete modernization of the Naval Observatory and $225,000 was appropriated. The new telescope will cost $76,000.

There have been on major improvements at the naval station since the completion in 1873 of the 26-inch refractor telescope now in use.

The 40-inch glass cast, from which the huge lens for the new instrument will be ground, is expected to arrive from France within a month. It was made at the Saint-Gobain plant near Paris—a plant that has been making

Dr. Ritchey is enthusiastic over his new project. The 68-year-old scientist said he hopes to "erect a monument to his 35 years of telescope building."

Blueprints Ready

He said he has been at work on the drawings and blueprints since February. He has established a work room in the observatory's main building.

The Mt. Wilson telescope—largest in existence —makes available about 84 per cent of the light rays. Dr. Ritchey expects his new instrument to develop 90 per cent efficiency. This will enable the Naval Observatory staff to produce the most accurate and most detailed photographs of the stars and heavenly bodies ever made.

The entire instrument will be floated in mercury to eliminate friction. Its movements will be synchronized with the rotation of the earth so as to cut down the percentage of mathematical error.

Plans already are taking form for the dedication of the new telescope. It is expected President Hoover and other high government officials, as well as leading astronomers from this country and abroad, will be present.

Hamilton Co. Is Without Any Court House Since 1893

McLeansboro, Ill., (AP)— Although Hamiliton county at one time boasted of a court house as fine as any of its neighboring counties it is now the only county seat in the state without a court house.

Records show the last court house vanished in flames and smoke 38 years ago and despite repeated efforts to finance a new building the issue has always been defeated in county elections.

Only a few years ago,the question was again agitated but with little sucess. Crop failures and ever increasing taxes have brought bond issues into increasing disfavor with the majority of the citizens.

Hamilton county's first court house a log cabin, was replaced by a two-story brick structure in 1842. The building was the scene of many historical events and its corridors were tred by the feet of many of the nation's greatest statesmen.

As he years forged onward, however, the structure was relegated to wrack and ruin and was finally abandoned and condemned. For several years the progressive citizens of the county sought a new court house without success

On July 4, 1893, fire destroyed the historic landmark. Many believed the fire of incendiary origin for when firemen attempted to fight the big blaze citizens blocked their efforts and threatened to cut the hose lines.

Imitating Nero ,one of the townsmen, a cornetist of the McLeansboro band, marched around the public square while the building was blazing solemnly playing a funeral march, while some citizens frowned upon the proceedings, contending such foolishness would help to prevent the construction of another court house in McLeansboro for forty years.

Soon after the burning of the old court house, the citizens of the county were forced to take up an old issue of railroad bonds amounting to $191,000. Consequently when the question of a new court house was brought to a vote a short time later, the voters were bond shy and the proposition was defeated by a large majority.

The last time a vote was taken on the issue it was defeated by only 124 votes.

Heart of Liane

by MABEL McELLIOTT

©1931 by NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LIANE BARRETT, 18 and beautiful, lives in a cramped New York apartment with her mother, CASS BARRETT, a rather faded actress. Cass worries over their low finances. Then she receives an offer to play at the Willow Stream Theater, a Long Island play house of which wealthy MRS. CLEESPAUGH is patron.

On a hot night Cass rushes home to tell Liane this news. The girl has been working in a department store and has gone to dinner with MOLLY CRONIN, a neighbor of whom Cass disapproves, and two of Molly's men friends. Soon a note arrives from Liane, begging her mother to come at once to a down-town address. Frantic, Cass hastens there. SHANE McDERMID, young policeman in charge, tells her that the men with whom Molly and Liane dined have quarreled and one of them is shot. Touched by Liane's youth and obvious innocence, he releases her. Back at the theater Liane encounters a handsome stranger who calls her by name.

Cass and Liane leave for Willow Stream. ELSIE HINTER, ingenue, goes with them to play in the same company as Cass. Liane is to work in the box office. Elsie introduces Liane to CLIVE CLEESPAUGH, son of the theater's patron. Shane McDermid comes to tell Liane that the man wounded in the gun fight has recovered.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

MURIEL LADD was the girl who was to share Liane's duties in the box office. Muriel was slender and graceful. She had a skin like porcelain, delicate, insolent brows and an intimidating drawl. Muriel was a Willow Stream Junior Leaguer, bored with life and anxious to "express herself." She wore exquisite sports clothes, and banded a gypsy scarf about her head when she rode. Her fingernails were as long as a mandarin's and she used quantities of exotic scent.

Liane was impressed. Beside this other girl who was her own age she felt singularly immature. Muriel spoke with equal carelessness of Biarritz and Monaco, of Milan and Gibraltar and Burlingame and Hawaii and Saratoga and Havre de Grace and Asheville. Muriel had been everywhere, knew everybody and liked nothing at all. She told Liane that she could bear Dutch boats better than English ones because the officers on the Dutch line were "smoothies." Liane didn't know what she meant and said so.

Muriel explained tolerantly that a smoothy was a darb, a love, a cute thing or what have you? She didn't seem to despise Liane for her abysmal ignorance. Rather she patronized her and tried to enlighten her.

"Don't you think a girl should have affairs before she marries?" Muriel drawled.

Liane looked shocked. She trembled to think what the sisters at St. Anne's would have thought of Muriel Ladd.

"I really don't know," she faltered. "I hadn't thought much about it."

"Well, I do," Muriel said coldly. "I think it accentuates her charm. I think we're awfully stupid and provincial over here."

She blew a cloud of smoke. "Come to dinner Saturday night," she offered lazily. "I've got a new smoothy I want you to see. He's a love. Awfully old for me, of course. He's 38. But I like 'em that way. Happens to be married but his wife's a dud and doesn't matter. Come and watch my technique."

Liane said, "If you really want me I'll ask mother."

Muriel laughed. "You're a queer one," she trilled. "All this 'ask mother' stuff amuses me to death. Really it does. I think you're one of those quiet, sly ones. Why, your mother's not bothered about what you do. Isn't she on the stage? Isn't she broadminded? Seems so silly, to talk as if you were still in kindergarten."

"May I take you in?" Van Robard asked.

LIANE defended herself. "My mother's frightfully particular," she said. She couldn't help being scornful of Muriel's opinions. She allowed herself to be lofty on this familiar ground. "Everybody who knows anything at all realizes that people in the profession are extremely circumspect in their private lives. You evidently believe all you read in the papers."

Muriel looked slightly surprised. "Oh, come on. I didn't mean anything, really," she said apologetically. "I was just trying to see what you'd say. But do come! We need an extra girl. Mother's at Bar Harbor and I'm throwing this party myself."

Liane allowed herself to be mollified. She felt that she had won the upper hand with this superior girl once at least. She was glad she had been so emphatic.

"But, sweet, you've nothing decent to wear," Cass demurred when Liane told her about the invitation. Cass was pleased though. You could see that. Willow Stream, after all, was turning out to be a rather dull place for a young girl with no money, no friends and position. Liane belonged neither to the rich, fashionable crowd, nor to the natives. She was one of the in-between and for a girl of her age being an in-between is sometimes a very difficult matter indeed.

"Nothing to wear to what?" demanded Elsie, bounding in. Told of the coming festivity, Elsie declared "My black chiffon is to be had on a moment's notice." She went to her room and returned with the dress trailing over her arm. "Sweet of you," Cass murmured, "but it does make the child look terribly old."

"Oh, mother, that's so old-fashioned of you," cried Liane. She had slipped out of her dimity and stood, arms upraised, as Elsie tossed the drifts of smoky stuff over her head. "There!" She stood transfigured, dimly mysterious and alluring in the half light.

"You're really—quite—adorable," Elsie drawled. "Give that little hell-cat from the upper crust a run for her money."

"You don't like Muriel, do you?" Liane asked. "Not much!" said Elsie with some bitterness. "As soon as she saw Clive was making a play for me she put her oar in. She barged in and interrupted every time we had a minute together. Now she's got him. Oh, she's a vixen, that girl. I'll get her yet."

CASS looked troubled. "Does she seem quite—quite nice for you, dear?" she asked Liane. "After all, you know very little about her."

"Oh, mother, I've got to have some fun!" begged Liane.

"Let the kid go. She'll probably crab some of the little snake's plans without meaning to," Elsie urged, low-voiced. "Liane's pretty enough for anything."

On Sunday night, since there was to be no performance, Muriel sent the car around for her guest. Liane, with high beating heart, was handed down by an attentive footman. The house looked infinitely imposing with its great verandas, its maroon-frocked maids moving attentively about. She left her wrap in an upstairs room done in faded pinks and blues, a Louis XIV room. She descended the black walnut stairs. Muriel, in a frock the color of moonlight, a frock sweeping the ground, stood in the center of a chattering group.

She turned, lifting those insolent eyebrows quizzically at Liane. "Perfect," she said, putting down her cocktail glass. She swung Liane about, holding her by the wrist. "Tableau," she cried. "Tempest and Sunshine!"

Liane blushed to the roots of her bronze curls. "I'll begin with you," Muriel said, indicating a tall man who lounged against an atrocious white marble mantel. "This is Van Robard, Liane, the well-known heart-wrecker."

Liane looked into the deep-set eyes and met the mocking smile of the man who had called her by her name that night outside Vernon's office!

Her confusion was lost in the chatter and the clink of crystal as a man in livery went from group to group, proffering goblets and napkins, sea green and smaller than a lady's handkerchief. Liane accepted a goblet and then put it down surreptitiously. No one saw the gesture and she was glad. The man called Van Robard seemed the very hub of the gayest crowd. Muriel aimed her deftest sallies at him. Liane felt Cinderella-wise. The gayety, a little noisy, a little shrill, ebbed away from her.

Why had she come? She didn't belong here. She longed to slip away into the quiet of the summer night outside. Almost she suited the action to the thought.

A RED-HAIRED youth who looked like an infant Bacchus caught her arm slyly as she made a sudden, instinctive movement toward the French door.

"Don't go," he said slyly. She shrank from his touch and from the scent of liquor on him.

"I wasn't going," Liane lied. "Just wanted some air."

"Here's a good number," chortled the boy Bacchus, rumpling his hair anew. He challenged the crowd with his discovery. "Good number desires air. What d'you know about that?"

Liane felt the hot color rising to the very roots of her hair. How she hated them all at that moment! Rich, good-looking, unmannerly crowd!

The man called Van Robard broke away from Muriel's small court and came toward her.

"Sky, beat it," he said, in a tone so low none of the rest could hear. "You're annoying the lady."

The red-haired youth mumbled incoherently and drifted back to the others.

"Don't mind that idiot," said the man with the dark eyes, speaking very quietly.

"I don't—now." She could smile again.

"Thanks." His look had a warm, caressing quality about it.

The man said, "Hope we get some food soon. I played tennis for hours today and I'm hungry."

Liane smiled at him in sympathy.

"May I take you in?" Van Robard asked. "There's never any ceremony about these affairs of Muriel's. I think Graves is announcing food this minute."

She took his arm and they followed the chattering dozen into a great room lined with paintings, hung with rich fabrics.

Van watched Liane, amused.

"I thought you'd like these relics," he said, nodding toward the portraits. "Most people get a shock when they see this house for the first time. Nice, rural little shack it is. Such quiet taste!"

Liane flushed to meet his mockery.

"It all seems very grand to me," she said. "But you—how did you know it was the first time I'd been here?"

Van gave her a shrewd glance.

"Because I asked Muriel to have you," he said unexpectedly. "Because I wanted to see you again at close range."

CHANCE DISCOVERY OF $500 SLOT MACHINE CHECK THREE YEARS AGO LED TO UNCOVERING OF CAPONE GANG'S MILLIONS IN CHICAGO BANKS

Income Tax Bureau's Secret Service Reveals How Trail of Riches Finally Led to "Big Shot"

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of four exclusive stories on "How They Got Al Capone," who faces sentence at Chicago on June 30, to a federal penitentiary. Previous stories have told how Capone is now insolvent as the result of business depression and federal prosecution of his gang, and of U. S. District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, their nemesis.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

Chicago —(NEA Service)— The business depression which reduced the demand for Al Capone's liquor gambling and vice may be responsible for the gang leader's insolvency today, but he owes his approaching penitentiary sentence to a small group of persistent men who worked nearly four years to get him behind the bars.

The "intelligence unit" of the U. S. Internal Revenue Bureau is probably the least known of Uncle Sam's investigating committees. It hunts income tax dodgers quietly, sticks with a given job year after year, works behind the scenes, gets no glory, wants none. In fact, this is probably the first time you have ever seen its name in a newspaper.

Therefore, it is in order to tell something about this little known but highly efficient secret service organization. It works under the direction of David Burnet, U. S. commissioner of internal revenue at Washington. Its chief is Elmer L. Irey, a veteran investigator with many famous cases to its credit. Heading the Chicago division, which comprises seven states, is A. P. Madden, division chief. An ace among its special agents is Frank J. Wilson of Washington.

Its men are not detectives and do not claim to be. Mostly, they are expert accountants and lawyers. They know little about guns and nothing about disguises, but they do know an awful lot about bank accounts and financial transactions. Give one of them a few days and he can possibly tell you more about your financial affairs than you know yourself.

They worked three and one-half years to get the goods on Al Capone, and in doing so they assisted in the financial wrecking of his gang by sending two of his chief lieutenants to the penitentiary and getting several more started well on the road there. Frank Nitti, Capone gang treasurer and alcohol king, and Sam Guzik, its slot machine and vice czar, are in Leavenworth prison now for trying to beat the income tax law. Ralph Capone, Al's brother, and chief of the beer division, is under sentence of three years, but has appealed. Jack Guzik, Capone's business manager, and head of the gambling syndicate, is likewise under sentence, but has appealed. There are others, too, but they don't figure in this story.

The trail that finally led to Al Capone himself, began late in 1927. One of the Income Tax Bureau's agents found that Ralph Capone had not filed returns for 1922, 1923, 1924 or 1925. He suggested to Ralph that he had better file.

Ralph filed, but he paid no tax, insisting that he was financially unable. Pressed, he offered $1,000 as a compromise. He represented that he was insolvent, or virtually so, and that his only holdings amounted to half interest in race horses of doubtful value.

$6500 Slot Machine Check Gives First Clew

In January, 1928, the intelligence agents began to investigate his ability to pay his taxes, penalties and interest charges for the four years.

Somewhere along the line the investigators chanced upon a $500 check drawn by a South Side man whom they knew to be interested in a slot machine racket. Who got it? Bank accounts were quietly analyzed and it was found that this check had been deposited in a bank at Cicero (Chicago suburb and Capone stronghold) to the credit of one "James Carson."

Tracing the "James Carson" account the agents made an amazing discovery. They found that several years before Ralph Capone had opened an account in this bank under his own name, and had then opened and closed six successive accounts under various aliases, cutting which time $2,000,000 passed through these several accounts.

This discovery wasn't easy. The bank officials said they didn't know of any connection between the various accounts and therefore could be of little aid. Moreover, the bank officials were not acquainted with "James Carson" of any of the others because, as they said, these customers had never come to the bank. They always sent the signature cards out to them, it was explained, and deposits and withdrawals were made by representatives. The canceled checks had been returned to the customer long ago. There seemed to be no trail to follow.

Slow Comparison of Accounts Links Them

But this didn't stump the investigators. By tediously checking the amounts of withdrawals and comparing these amounts with simultaneous deposits to other accounts and finding people who got various checks, the investigators finally tied Ralph to every one of these accounts. Where the amounts were in round numbers it was hard, but where odd amounts were involved comparison was easier.

The government then produced witnesses who testified that Ralph signed checks by these various aliases in their presence. Moreover, handwriting experts identified the various signature cards as having been signed by the same man.

Turning next to the deposits made to these accounts, the agents traced these checks back to saloon keepers who had bought beer from Ralph. They even produced saloon keepers who testified to this on the witness stand. Some of them were payroll checks that saloon keepers had cashed for their customers.

Remittance sheets of the bank showed checks sent to other banks for collection. Though details may vary, every bank keeps such a record of every account. This led to a new trial. For six weeks six men did nothing else but trace literally thousands upon thousands of old checks. Bales of dusty remittance sheets and other bank records, long stored in warehouses, were taken out and scanned.

Ralph Capone Trail Leads to Guzik Account

In the end, they got what they wanted. The trail of the Ralph Capone checks led to Jack Guzik's accounts in other Chicago banks—accounts that represented yearly transactions running into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Gangdom was being linked together.

By some means best known to themselves, the agents found Fred Reese, Guzik's financial helper, in St. Louis and brought him back here. Reese testified he, at various times, had purchased $250,000 worth of cashier's checks with gang profits from gambling houses. Practically all of these were traced to [illegible] just as Reese said they could be. Guzik, trying to be shrewd, immediately turned in his money and bought cashier's checks, but he was too dumb to know that cashier's checks leave the clearest trail of all.

The Capone gang's Hawthorne dog track was paying huge profits—in one year it actually paid a 300 per cent cash dividend. These dividend checks were traced and some found deposited to the account of a Dr. David B. Owens, in a certain bank. Strangely enough, an identical sum of money had been withdrawn from Dr. Owens' account the next day. Strangely too, an exactly similar amount had been deposited to Guzik's credit in another Chicago bank the following day. On the stand, Dr. Owens admitted that the stock held in his name really belonged to Guzik.

The trail led next to the accounts of Sam Guzik, Jack's brother. Sam was hiding behind aliases, too, and dabbling with various brokerage houses, but again the careful checking of accounts nailed its man. Sam pleaded guilty.

Nitti, Gang Treasurer, It Finally Nailed

On and on the trail led to Frank Nitti and his transactions, as it was eventually ascertained, of $700,000 to $800,000 in two years. But Nitti had a different system; he didn't deposit the checks he collected, but would merely leave them at the bank to be cleared, call back again after they had been cleared and get the cash. It looked like Nitti hadn't left much of a trail.

But investigators who had been trained as expert accountants knew better. They knew that every bank keeps a record of "out clearings," showing where checks sent to it for collection went when they went home. Tedious tracing followed these checks back to the alcohol buyers and others whence they came. Nitti soon found it advisable to enter a plea of guilty and take 18 months in Leavenworth, where he now is.

Trail at Last Leads To "Big Shot" Himself

On and on the trail led, through a maze of bank records of one sort or another. Weeks and months had gone by since the government agents had stumbled on that first $500 slot machine check that led its devious path to Ralph Capone, otherwise "James Carson," but always the object was the same. Higher still was the man who was yet to be got—the "Big Fellow" himself.

The other day the Internal Revenue Bureau's men found themselves ready. At last they had the long-sought missing link. They struck. The long awaited income tax indictments against Al Capone himself were returned. A few days later Capone came into court and pleaded guilty.

You may guess what that missing link was. Until Capone is actually behind the bars at Leavenworth penitentiary, these shrewd investigators will not reveal it.

Specifically, Al was charged with "failure to file, failure to pay, attempt to defeat and evade" income taxes for the years 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929, on an income totaling $1,038,659.89. The government says it can prove that he has evaded a tax of $215,090.48, which now—with the 50 per cent penalty for fraud and interest charges—amounts to $400,000. They say they can prove this much income in the court; there may be much more.

Others of the income tax bureau's secret service who aided in getting the goods on Al Capone were: Special Agents, N. E. Tessem and Clarence Converse of Chicago; Archie Martin of Kansas City; U. S. Revenue Agents Westrich and Claggett of Brooklyn and William Hodgins, Chicago, revenue agent.

TOMORROW: How prohibition agents got their evidence.

THE MEN WHO GOT THE EVIDENCE of huge income tax fraud by Al Capone are shown here. Chief Irey, of Washington, heads the secret service of the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue; Division Chief Madden, of Chicago, is in charge in that area; Special Agent Wilson is an ace investigator. They are shown with U. S. District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson of Chicago, to whom they turned over their evidence for prosecution.

What One $500 Slot Machine Check Turned Up After Three Years

The extent of gangland's financial operations in Chicago and the part played by the gangsters mentioned in this story is indicated by these figures, taken from federal court records at Chicago. These incomes are for three years in each case. The government does not contend that these figures are complete; they represent merely the amounts the government was able to prove.

	3-year income	Source
Ralph Capone	$1,871,000	Beer
Jack Guzik	1,049,000	Gambling
Frank Nitti	700,000	Alcohol
Sam Guzik	340,000	Slot Machines

All these men were Al Capone's lieutenants. How much of the money they collected eventually went to the "Big Shot" himself? They wouldn't tell, preferring to go to the penitentiary instead. The government was getting ready to show what Al Capone got when he suddenly pleaded guilty and thus evaded a trial.

Here Is Reliable Cure For Infection From Poison Ivy

Chicago—If an outdoor fan is unfortunate enough to acquire a "case" of poison ivy this summer he'll be better off if he does not listen to his friends and try all their home-made "sure-cure remedies," advises the Izaak Walton League in a recent vacation bulletin.

There is no reason to fool with trick cures when a definite relief and cure for poison ivy is available. Here is the way to treat a case of this vegetable poison. The method is the result of hundreds of experiments conducted by a well known scientist, J. B. McNair, formerly connected with the University of Chicago, and now on the staff of the Field Museum.

First, infected parts should be washed thoroughly with strong soap and water. Laundry soap is better than a plain hand soap. The idea is to remove from the skin as much much of the irritating oil of the poison ivy plant as possible. Soap and water will do very well, but washing the infected parts with ether or chloroform is recommended because the oil of poison ivy is easily soluble in these.

Next, apply a 5 per cent solution of Ferric Chloride which has been added to a fifty-fifty solution of water and alcohol. If you can't get the alcohol use the diluted ferric chloride solution. Swab the infected parts thoroughly with cotton soaked in the chloride, and then apply compresses of the solution to the infected skin. Keep the pads moist and well bandaged. Renew the chloride solution at intervals.

Ferric chloride or iron chloride can be purchased at most any drug store. Outdoor fans who wish to play safe can take a bottle of it with them on their trips.
